Customer Reviews

I bought this book for my 5 year-old who is now in Kindergarten. I was very impressed with the various ways in which it encourages young ones to practice their writing. It contains guides for each letter, rhymes, pictures to color geared to the letters, and best of all, pull-out cards to use to review the process. Well worth the price for your beginning writer.

This was really not what I thought I was ordering. The only "instruction" is "Write the letter, then the word!" I guess I was expecting a format where students trace a solid letter, then dotted letter, then write their own with a guided starting dot, then fully on their own. This really just has the letter, then several words beginning with that letter, (and I suppose I should add as a bonus that there is ample room for practice, with lots of blank lines), and a huge full-page picture to color that goes along with an alliterative rhyme for each letter. Also has a section of tear-apart cards with each letter and number, but I'm not sure what purpose they are intended to serve, as they don't appear to be dry-erasable. This would perhaps be a good supplement to writing practice, or something fun for a child who just really loves copywork, but it was not what I was hoping for or expecting, and I will be returning it.

The book is very good practice for learning, just wish it were thicker with more practice pages.

My favorite part of this book is the pullout middle section that shows the example of how to make each letter. This book could be improved by including rows of traceable letters. This seems to be made for someone who already knows the print. In which case, you wouldn't need this book. We haven't used anything besides the pull out and it will likely become more of a coloring book than anyone else. If you want to find a useful resource for teaching your child D'Nealian, there are FREE PRINTABLES that you can find and print. I printed the entire alphabet and I love the format. Look on Pinterest!

I purchased this book to supplement my kindergartener's homework. His school teaches the D'Nealian style of writing. This workbook comes with a set of removable flashcards that teach the proper way to write the letters. Each page has a letter or number associated with it. There is not a lot of tracing practice. There is an opportunity to trace an upper case and lower case letter and then the rest of the page is filled with lines for practicing. This is exactly what I was looking for as I wanted my son to learn to write on his own. There are several lines--at least 8-10, to allow for plenty of practice. There is a coloring page for each letter. It has pictures of words that start with the accompanying letter. The pictures are quite cute. In general, this is a wonderful supplemental workbook.

An absolutely perfect foundation in D'Nealian manuscript. Samples with individual removable sample cards for each letter and number. Exercises with practice pages.
